A Cyclone Demolishes the Town of Odell.
CHICAGO, May 11.—A most destructive cyclone is reported from Odell village, forty miles south of Joliet, on the Chicago & Alton, this afternoon about 4 o'clock.

Delegates to the state Sabbath school convention returning on the train arriving here at 6 p. m., state that as the train was nearing Odell they saw the cyclone approaching. First they saw the roof of the elevator raise and sail off in the air and the building collapsed. The hotel and houses raised up, tumbled over like feathers and were shattered to pieces, both brick and frame, and all sizes, from shanties to two-story buildings. The train was stopped, but as the wind was blowing parallel with the track it was not upset, though the driving bricks and sticks broke the windows. Considerable time was required to move the debris from the track before the train could proceed. After the cyclone people busied themselves looking under ruined houses for those missing.

PARTICULARS OF THE DISASTER.
BLOOMINGTON, May 13.—The Post-graph's special from Odell is as follows: "At 3:45 p. m. today, a terrible cyclone struck this village, demolishing one brick block, and wrecking three warehouses. It unroofed the hotel, Masonic Hall and four stone buildings, and carried away also the upper story of the Angel block in which was located the Odell bank. The Odd Fellows lodge room was completely destroyed. Scarcely a stone in the town escaped injury. The loss will amount to $50,000. Houses, barns and sheds were twisted off their foundations and blown down and completely destroyed. Trees a foot in diameter were twisted entirely off. The storm did not last over five minutes. Ten minutes before the storm the air seemed to get green, two clouds advancing one from the southwest and one from the town forming a monstrous whirlwind which swept everything in its track.

THE INJURED.
Lottie Zwille, a ten year old girl was carried over two hundred feet in the air and fell on the railroad track, smashing in her skull. George and Charles Hooke, livery men, L. L. Cole, hardware merchant and two children of John Miller's are seriously hurt.

Sacrificing Ireland's Bright Prospects.
LONDON, May 12.—The ministerialists say that important concessions will be announced in the house of commons tomorrow in the shape of amendments to the home rule bill. It is said they will be for full representation for Ireland in the British parliament with the privilege of voting on all foreign questions, the budget, customs and excise measures. The radical seceders will be contented with nothing short of a parliament for Ireland, Hartington is ready to form a ministry of moderates, and it is expected that Trevelyan will join Lord Hartington, but that chamberlain will hold aloof. Gladstone's supporters threaten to bring about a dissolution of parliament, but it is certain the queen would refuse her assent to dissolution under the present prospect of a defeat of the home rule bill.

The Storm at Joliet.
JOLIET, May 12.—One of the severest storms ever known in Joliet struck here about 8:30 this evening, a deluge of rain and hail inundating the streets and the thunder shaking the earth. The thunder bolts were deafening and the electric display unparalleled. A circus was having a performance and in the midst the storm struck the tent and turned the whole show upside down. Women screamed, animals howled and a general stampede ensued, amid sheets of lightning, a drowning rain and a resolute gale. Three persons were seriously injured by falling poles and a number were hurt slightly.

Coolidge in Ashes.
ALBUQUERQUE, May 13.—News has been received of the almost total destruction of the town of Coolidge on the Atlantic & Pacific railroad. About 2 p. m. during the heaviest wind storm of the season, fire broke through the floor of the depot, and soon the depot and eating house were in ashes. The flames swept across the street and totally destroyed the business part of the town. Eight buildings were destroyed, only two of which were partially insured. The fire is supposed to have originated from the sparks of an engine being blown under the depot platform.

The Generous Union Pacific.
DENVER, May 12.—Fifteen of the late striking Union Pacific brakemen left for Kansas City today on passes furnished by the Union Pacific. None of the prominent strikers were taken back to work. The twenty special deputies of Pinkerton's force left for Chicago today, there being no further necessity for them.

Ohio Republicans Pained.
WASHINGTON, May 12.—The following is a full text of the resolutions adopted by the Ohio republican state central committee which were presented in the senate today by Senator Hoar:

WHEREAS, It has been shown to our satisfaction by the testimony submitted before the committee of the Ohio house of representatives, under house resolution No. 23, and from other sources, so strongly as to induce us to believe and charge that the election of Henry B. Payne to be a senator of the United States, was secured by bribery, fraud and corruption; and

WHEREAS, The facts so established reflect upon the good name of Ohio by the effect in morals as well as in validity of the title of Payne to his seat in the senate. Now, therefore be it

RESOLVED, By the republican state central committee of Ohio, that in the name of all the honest people in the state of Ohio and for the credit of the hitherto unsullied name and reputation of our state, that the senate of the United States and hereby is respectfully requested to present investigation into the matter suggested by said report and charges therein preferred and to take such action thereon as may be necessary to relieve our state from the disgrace which it now rests under, and do equity and justice to all concerned; and

Resolved, that the chairman of this committee is directed to forward an authenticated copy of these resolutions to the Hon. J. G. Hoar, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections of the United States senate.

Appended to the documents are the signatures of the chairman and secretary of the committee.

A large meeting of the association of manufacturers was held tonight and all the members, including thirty-one firms, pledged themselves to give out no more work until the strikers recede from their present position.

THE LAS VEGAS BREWERY.

A Description of King Gambrinus, Southwestern Headquarters.

Yesterday a GAZETTE reporter went out to the Las Vegas brewery, and was shown through the entire premises by the accommodating proprietor, G. A. Rothgeb, who by the way is one of the most successful and enterprising business men of our city. Las Vegas beer is known all over the territory, and here at home it is used almost to the exclusion of foreign makes. The principles and practices in the manufacture of this popular drink are everywhere a sobriety lesson.

It is mainly in the purity of the ingredients and in the skill in determining when each particular process shall end. It is needless to say that only the best materials are used at our brewery, and these are subjected to a skill acquired by years of intelligent application to the business. This much is implied in the popularity Las Vegas beer has achieved over all its competitors. Beer is a fermented liquor, as are wine and cider, and thus differs from whisky, brandy, rum, gin, and the like, which are distilled after fermentation. All fermentation is virtually the same, and consists in changing starch into sugar and sugar into alcohol; for alcohol is the product aimed at, and is the intoxicating principle of all liquors. Beer has from six to eight per cent. of alcohol, wines from seven to seventeen, while brandy and whisky have from twenty to twenty-five per cent. Any kind of grain may be used in the making of beer, but for many reasons barley has been found to be the best. The preliminary step is to convert the barley into malt. This has come to be a business in itself, and our brewery, like most others in this country, buys malt ready made. So the actual process of brewing begins with the grinding of this malt. This is done in our brewery by the most approved roller method. After the meal has remained in the bin till thoroughly cool, it is then brought into intimate contact with water at such a temperature will best extract its saccharine matter, as well as change into grape sugar any starch which may have escaped the mashing. The wort, as the liquid is now called, is pumped into the boiling-back while the mash, or solid part that remains, furnishes excellent food for cattle. At this stage hops are added to the wort and the mixture is boiled rapidly for five or six hours. The making of beer without hops would now be a thing unthought of, yet as late as 240 years ago, the city of London petitioned parliament to prohibit their use, stating that "this wicked weed would spoil the drink, and endanger the lives of the people." From the boiling-back the wort is pumped into the hop-back, a large wooden tank, where the hop-leaves are separated from the liquid. It is taken next to the patent coolers, a series of horizontal copper tubes through which water is kept running while a thin stream of wort trickles over them, from pipe to pipe, till the last is reached. From the coolers the wort passes to the fermenting cellar, where yeast is added, and the liquid undergoes the peculiar chemical change by which the sugar is converted into alcohol and carbonic acid. This cellar is kept at a very low degree of temperature that the fermentation may progress but slowly. When sufficient alcohol has been produced, the beer is cleaned of the yeast, and conveyed to the larger cask, where it lies in huge vats for months and slowly ripens. This gives it its name, lager being a derivative of the German lagern, to lie. To maintain the requisite temperature large quantities of ice are used, our brewery alone putting up more than 2,000 tons. In Tasmania the beer is frozen into blocks, and shipped in this condition to Australia and India where the people eat it on hot days instead of drinking it as we do. Rothgeb is satisfied with putting his into kegs and bottles, and shipping it to all parts of New Mexico. The bottling room, as is every other part of the Las Vegas brewery, is complete and uses the most improved appliances. There are machines for washing, rinsing, corking filling and preparing the wine, steam vats for heating the filled bottles, and all other contrivances for turning out an article of bottled beer second to none in the country. Very few as they are their glass of this creamy beverage have any idea of the labor, skill, money and scientific knowledge, which have all combined to produce it for them at so slight a price; and still fewer are aware that we have all these in a very high degree, here at Las Vegas, as one of our home enterprises. Of course our brewery cannot place itself for magnitude beside that of Bass, the largest brewer in the world, who pays a yearly duty on a million barrels; but as far as it goes it is as complete in its arrangements; and the article it produces cannot be discounted by any other.

Still, it must not be thought from this that the Las Vegas brewery is a small affair. The buildings, situated in the northern part of the old town, are imposing and ample, covering quite a breadth of surface and well suited to their several purposes. The four ice houses, with their fermenting and lager cellars, the engine and boiling rooms, the bins and granaries for the storage of the materials employed, the different stories for the accommodation of various parts of the process, the large vats with their fermenting and ripening liquor, the furnaces for pitching the kegs and barrels—all these require a building that at once attracts the attention of every one.

By requirement of the government the bottling department must be always separated from the brewery by a public highway, and the beer to be bottled shall be carried from one to the other in barrels on which the requisite stamps have been placed. For the convenience of the machinery employed in this department, it also is large and commodious, the two making an establishment of which our city is properly proud.
